EXPLANATORY NOTES TO CHANGES IN CORPORATE INCOME TAX FORM FOR TAX PERIOD 2018

As of January 1st 2019, a new version of the Corporate Income Tax Form (Form C 2018) for companies and other corporate income tax payers is available, for the tax period 2018, which incorporates legislative and administrative changes that are applicable under various acts passed by the parliament. This document summarizes all the changes to the CIT form that were made for 2019.

Taxpayers should note that the changes are only applicable to the form for tax period 2018. For prior year tax periods, the forms remain unchanged.

There are two parts to the changes made to the formlines.

Part 1: Changes to Item 7 - Schedule of Revenue Foregone

The changes described below now require the tax payer to separately calculate and report incentive deductions/exemptions allowable under the Income Tax Act (ITA).

1. Item 7 – Schedule of Revenue Foregone now contains mandatory fields that have to be completed by the taxpayer IF the tax payer wishes to claim incentivised deductions/exemptions allowable under the ITA.
2. The schedule has been rationalised to include only incentives and exemptions that are applicable from 1st January 2018. All other items under the schedule that have been revoked or have an inbuilt sunset clause or are other wise not applicable have been deleted from the form.
3. The taxpayer is URGED TO TAKE NOTICE of the instructions provided within paranthesis under each formline of this Item 7 – Schedule of Revenue Foregone, when calculating their income tax payable. It is important that the tax payer segregates these specific deductions/exemptions from others in order for IRC to assess the correct taxable income. At no point must the tax payer double count between any formline listed under Items 1-7

Part 2: Changes to Items 4 and 5 of the CIT form
